

Are you the next Neil Gaiman or J.K. Rowling?

The Library is on the hunt for College's budding writers! The AoC has joined up with the Copyright Licensing Company to launch a nationwide Creative Writing Project in the hope of encouraging FE learners to improve their literacy skills and find their voice. Each college can submit up to 5 entries of their student's work to the project. The submissions then have the possibility of being selected and published in an online anthology for all to read.

To find our entries, the Library is running a creative writing competition! Students can choose to write in ANY style (e.g. poetry, prose, fiction, non-fiction etc.), about ANY topic, but it must be no more than 500 words. All entries must be in a Word document format and accompanied by a consent form if they wish to be submitted to the AoC Creative Writing Project. The Project deadline is the 12th of May, so we'll be closing the competition on Monday 8th May, to give us time to shortlist our entries. Our 5 shortlisted entries will win a £10 Amazon voucher.

Please note:

If you'd like to be considered by the AoC to be published in the anthology, please complete the consent form below and submit it with your entry:

We have some winners!

Thank you to everyone who submitted entries to our creative writing competition, we were incredibly impressed with the standard and creativity. Unfortunately, College was only able to submit 5 entries to the creative writing project being held by the AoC, and after much deliberation we selected the five below. Each winner received a £10 Amazon voucher and has been submitted to represent the College with a chance to appear in an online anthology for all to see. We will keep you posted if we hear anything regarding this.

Congratulations to our five winners! You can read their pieces below:
